Dear Mark,

I wanted to write and thank you properly for the donations you have made to Alzheimer's Research UK this year, which now total £19,600. We sincerely appreciate you choosing to contribute to dementia research through your extreme swims, and other opportunities like the unclaimed Wimbledon tickets.

As I'm sure David and I mentioned, we don't receive any government funding for our work. We can only fund the most promising dementia research through donations from companies, charitable foundations and members of the public, many of whom have also been affected personally by this devastating condition.

Please know that you are making a difference. For example, £20,000 could pay for a small pilot project, or most of the annual cost of a PhD student working on a dementia research study. Every increase in investment brings us closer to breakthroughs.

I will keep you updated, but please do get in touch any time.

With best wishes,

Annie Neild
