Fund News

Quarterly Reporting Season:

Micron delivered 58 per cent year on year revenue growth, partly aided by recovering memory prices. Ai driven HBM (High Bandwidth Memory) revenues represent a small but rapidly growing part of the mix.

Oracle reported revenue growth of 7 per cent, with 12 per cent Cloud growth. Broadcom reported revenue growth of 34 per cent, 11 per cent excluding VMware.

During the month, we slightly increased our long positions in Micron, Rambus, Dell and Applied Materials and initiated new long positions in Western Digital and Coherent Corp. We cut the Fund's position in Cisco (on performance) and reduced the Fund's position in Broadcom (on valuation).

Market Update

Another strong month for the Fund's NAV moving up ~ 5 per cent TR. Q1 2024 has seen a jump of ~ 33.5 per cent in NAV TR. It would not be surprising to see some consolidation in the Ai rally until we see more proof of monetisation which may be delivered in the forthcoming Q1 results season.

The key concern for financial markets now is that the 10yr yield has climbed back to ~4.5 per cent following some hotter than expected inflation figures throughout 2024. The negative impact of higher yields on long duration assets should never be underestimated. It is also critical for the Fund that there is no air pocket in the Quarterly Revenues at Nvidia as they introduce the Blackwell architecture chips which will succeed the current Hopper architecture. Longer term prospects look highly encouraging for the continuing Era of Ai.

Gearing, sometimes referred to as leverage, can be used by the Fund to borrow to gain additional exposure to investments. Gearing works by magnifying the performance, this can result in either greater losses or profit had the Fund not used Gearing.

Derivatives can be utilised by the Fund, these instruments also give rise to leverage without the need to borrow. Derivatives may in addition also give rise to counterparty risk, the risk the issuer of the derivative cannot fulfil its obligations (profit that maybe due to the Fund).
